

Down South by Oliver Optic -- Narrated by Stevan Simmons

This turn of the century story set in Florida chronicles the adventures of a young boat captain, Owen Garningham on his steam yacht the Sylvania. His yacht adventures consist of various excursions on the St. Johns River, from its mouth near Jacksonville to a point above the head of ordinary navigation, with a run across to Indian River, on the sea-coast, a trip up the Ocklawaha, to the Lake Country of Florida, and shorter runs up the smaller streams. The yachtsmen and his passengers try their hand at shooting alligators as well as more valuable game in the "Sportsman's Paradise" of the South, and find excellent fishing in both fresh and salt water. All during which the captain becomes the target of an envious competitor, Captain Boomsby, who will stop at nothing to cheat him of his rightful ownership of the Sylvania.
